

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 1/22/2024 9:20:42 PM

First name: Nuri

Last name: Pierce

Organization:

Title:

Comments: How natural structures will respond to increasing pressure to be available for any kind of recreation and intrusion? Is there any restriction to whatever humans want to do above or on them?

If tomorrow people in wheelchairs want to be hoisted over rock faces, are we going to allow reels and pulleys? And if not, why not? Are those intentions not the same as the ones that some people now have who want to scale rock faces? Both have the same legitimacy, human desires over the need to keep things as pristine as possible.

As a lover of natural scenery and pristine habitats I say no to permanent anchors and fixed climbing equipment that will only increase traffic over these breathtaking mountains and rock faces, incredible vistas that should remain what they are, above human threading.

Thank you

Nuri Pierce