

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 1/22/2024 11:41:31 PM

First name: Go

Last name: Clemson

Organization:

Title:

Comments: I am a former rock and ice climber. Humans need to learn to LEAVE SOME PLACES (and things) ALONE. Already in the lower 48 there is NO place farther than 21.7 miles from some sort of rd.

If I am lucky enough to be capable of visiting Wilderness, I DO NOT GO THERE TO SEE HUMAN STUFF, which includes glistening supposedly "better than more people putting in more anchors repeatedly placement of 'permanent anchors' " Reinhold Messner spoke eloquently about NOT bringing the mts and cliffs down to us by artificial means. If you cannot climb something without drilling and bolting etc, do not degrade that rock. Perhaps in the future, someone more capable may be able to climb it without permanent scarring and defacing ! LEAVE NO TRACE< especially in designated wilderness..