Comments: I am a senior and I no longer travel. Thank goodness, over my lifetime, I had the privilege to travel across America and camp at a few dozen of our beautiful national parks. I cherish my memories and enjoy hearing about various parks in the news. At this time in our history, it has become glaringly clear that preservation is the primary need. People need to recreate, to hike, to climb, to swim, to camp and picnic. And, the top priority must be to protect the land. I am not a climber, but I understand that there is the possibility of installing some permanent equipment that will compromise preservation. Please do everything possible to make sure that preservation is the top priority, and then that Americans can enjoy our beautiful spaces for generations to come.
