Comments: It is wonderful to know that your power to try and regulate things like this lies within the hands of Congress alone, not in the National Park Service. As we watch Chevron Deference begin to end it will eliminate your ability to continue to ruin the outdoors the way you have via bad policy based not upon science that has data to support it, but rather just on someones emotional decision. You are an absolute disgrace of an organization and you should fear the people of this country who provide your paychecks.
