Comments: I don't think we need to provide more opportunity for climbing in the wilderness areas when there is plenty of climbing to be done thru out the world all ready out there.

Using fixed anchors is much like roads in the wilderness. One leads to another. One person is not happy with where it's placed, so another is put in. Soon you have a full ladder of anchors that were not there before.

Let them climb somewhere else where it's set up correctly and you can practice your climbing skills.

Leave wilderness as wilderness. The less intrusion, the better.

thank you.
