Comments: The NPS and the US government as a whole, need to STOP pandering to special interests. This is mostly occurring so some group or business entity can profit, while the wild places we should treasure become spoiled by the thoughtless actions of tiny minorities. We do NOT need to be putting permanent climbing paraphernalia into our magnificent cliff faces, mountains, and spectacular rocks, so a few people can scale them. The benefit to the many, having these unspoiled places, must supersede the few people who just want a thrill and care not for the natural beauty of these places. It is unconscionable to allow our places of natural beauty and cultural significance to be treated in such a thoughtless manner. I object to all destructive things on our public lands, National Parks and Wilderness Areas, wild rivers, sensitive cultural sites, oceans, rivers, wetlands...and on and on...it is vital these places remain wild for my grandchildren, and beyond. It is our duty to PROTECT, not SELL OUT all of these irreplaceable and magnificent places. DO YOUR JOBS and preserve them for the quiet and non-destructive pleasure for all. RIGHT NOW.
