Comments: Hello,

I wanted to voice my opinion that prohibiting fixed anchors would be a terrible blow for rock climbers. Fixed bolts are what keep us safe while climbing. They are hardly visible. Climbers don't place more than are necessary (because they want to set good routes for people that others want to climb, and also too many bolts shows you are afraid). And, they cause less damage than most other things done on wild lands (like making trails). There is very little environmental impact from them, but they keep climbers infinitely more safe. I hope that you will not outlaw them or make them come under regulation from some other task force. Keep fixed anchors legal please!
