Comments: I very strongly am against the bolt prohibition!!! They do little to no environmental damage or disruption. This proposal is pure idiocy, and is proposed poorly and unethically. The bolts are a safety device, you take them away and people will by no question get hurt or die. People will still climb the routes when they're gone! There's no justification for our money being wasted tearing them out or removing certified teams who install and maintain them. This prohibition is unjustified if it's put into effect you'll also certainly have to spend immense amounts of money on security as well because of how many climbers will be installing them back into routes and placing ample more to frustrate the effort of taking them. This prohibition is wrong!!! Jordan Carter
