Comments: Climbing has been a big part of my life that last three years. Without it I probably wouldn't be here, and I certainly wouldn't have the respect and care for the environment that I have now that I have spent time outside climbing and exploring. Th community connections that climbing outside has facillitated in my life are unmeasurable.

I think to disallow rebolting and maintaining climbing routes in national parks is foolish, dangerous, and will have far reaching impacts on a community that cares and acts as stewards for the outdoors.
