Comments: I love the wilderness, I really do. Having been a kayaker for 45 years, I've seen sensible collaboration between the Parks and whitewater kayakers. In addition, I lived and worked in the Grand Canyon where a tight staff with astronomical qualifications reasonably manage the "people's use"

Please do the same for climbing! Sport climbing has it's place and reasonable anchors facilitate access to APPRECIATING the Parks and wilderness in general.

Government over reach in favor of one part of participants in this sport will be fought tooth and nail.

The lands are for the people. Without our will there can be no management. Making room for sport climbers will increase recreational will.
