Comments: I'm writing to support the change to restrict bolted climbing in wilderness and National Park areas. I think that the land agencies need more authority to regulate this use, due in part to the explosion of popularity in the sport recently and the lack of a similar explosion in Leave No Trace ethical enthusiasm.

I'm also a climber, so I empathize with the climbing community here. But climbers are starting to trample wilderness areas in unsustainable ways. It's time for more regulation.
