Comments: To whom it may concern,

Climbing in wilderness areas pre-dates the Wilderness Act and is an essential historic & modern form of recreation in these beautiful areas. Climbing is how I was introduced to the outdoors and how I have experienced much of what the USFS has to offer, leading me to be a staunch supporter of the environment and our country's natural resources.

Anchors are a critical and necessary part of the sport. While they admittedly have some impact, EVERY activity and user-group leaves an impact and singling climbers & climbing is arbitrary and short-sighted. Please don't institute these proposed changes that will, for all intents and purposes, make climbing impossible or illegal in these areas and restrict our birthright to explore and experience these places.

Thank you for your consideration,

Julius, Boulder CO
