Comments: I strongly disagree with the removal of and/or lack of maintenance for existing fixed anchors and equipment. Leave them and maintain them. If they break, replace them. So many people leverage this equipment for outdoor recreation. Removing them would significantly increase danger to outdoor recreationalists and increase the cost for climbing. It would require substantially more gear to be able to climb those same routes with non-fixed gear making climbing for only the rich elite and/or sponsored athletes with access to said non fixed equipment. Maybe limit new fixed equipment in new routes but don't destroy what's already there.
