Comments: In addition to the comments below, I'm urgently requesting a collaboration with the climbing community to come up with resolutions that will continue to allow recreating for climbers and ethics that can be promoted and utilized to protect national forests going forward.

Restricting the establishment of new routes to "existing climbing opportunities" on non-Wilderness lands is unenforceable and will create confusion amongst land managers and climbers. Non-Wilderness climbing management policy should maintain opportunities for new anchors unless and until analyses determine climbing should be restricted to protect cultural and natural resources.
