Comments: This directly impacts the safety of climbers, and is setting back the sport of climbing years. This ban will not stop climbers from wanting to climb on specific rocks/mountains but will only make it more dangerous for them. Rock climbers are respectful of the areas they are in with most cleaning areas and leaving them better than before all to make sure the climbing experience is even better for the next person. Bolts are put in strategically in order to provide safety while limiting damage to the rock, and in most cases do not impact the beauty of the location at all. I hope you reconsider before creating a law which would limit the sport and make it even harder for individuals to get outside and enjoy nature
