Comments: I would be devastated if I couldn't climb outside on big rock walls. Between getting out in nature and taking hikes to crags so I can climb has helped me with my physical and mental health so much! We take care of the outdoors even though so might think otherwise, the climbing community respects nature and tries to take care of all the crags we visit. I look forward to climbing trips with friends and we always clean up after ourselves. If anything the climbing community respects our surroundings more than most tourists just visiting a park for the day because we frequently visit these sites and want to continue to visit these sites! Climbers as a whole would work together to keep our parks safe!
