Comments: The regulation of fixed anchors to protect cultural resources, for example, on Native lands, is a reasonable level of regulation. My concern with the proposal regards the regulation of maintenance of existing anchors. Anchor replacement has generally been accomplished by an ad-hoc group of volunteer experts. By adding a layer of administrative burden to maintain anchors, I suspect many volunteers will be less inclined to take on the already thankless task. I hope that your regulations can find a way to strike a balance between protecting resources while still allowing the timely replacement of existing anchors. Thanks for your consideration.
