Comments: As a 20+ year climber in Southern Arizona, I have come to love the diverse climbing opportunities, including those offered on Mount Lemmon.

Restricting the establishment of new routes to "existing climbing opportunities" on non-Wilderness lands is unenforceable and will create confusion amongst land managers and climbers. Non-Wilderness climbing management policy should maintain opportunities for new anchors unless and until analyses determine climbing should be restricted to protect cultural and natural resources.

Thank you for your consideration.
