

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 1/29/2024 9:53:39 PM

First name: John

Last name: Sweat

Organization:

Title:

Comments: I believe that anchors should be allowed in national forests and in wilderness areas. They have less impact than every other form of travel I can think of in wilderness areas. Trails, as an installment, make have major impact on the vegetation and visual appeal of the land. Additionally, their "permanent" presence makes outdoor climbing safer. The risks would be considerably higher if these were not allowed because climbers would still attempt to climb many of these routes.