Comments: You have no idea what taking this away means for climbers not just in Utah, but everywhere. Being able to enjoy nature in its truest form is a type of therapy and calm you can't put a price on. Climbing has saved my life time and time again. Being able to do what I love outdoors in a place that I love is what keeps me going. This is going to hurt so many people and take away the joy that outdoor climbing is. Nature is meant to be used and enjoyed. So let's keep it that way.
