Comments: Sport climbing is essential to the climbing community. For people like myself who live outside of America, my dream is to come to places such as Yosemite, Joshua Tree, Red Rock, Zion. All of which are notorious climbing spots that people give their lives to. Dedicating lifetimes to being outside on rock. Taking this experience away from locals and outsiders is a detrimental shock to the community. Our sport was created outdoors, why take that away from us? So many great funds and initiatives have been created from climbing to protect nature, wildlife, and rock. Climbers are the most eco friendly, environmentally conscious athletes. We look after trails, camp sights, crags and everything in between. Do not take climbing away from us.
