Comments: I have been living at the mouth of and climbing in American Fork canyon for over 20 years. I also climb in the Salt Lake area. I also take my daughter and we canyoneer once a month in southern Utah in remote slot canyons using fixed anchors. Please do not classify fixed anchors as prohibited in wilderness areas. We have been enjoying these wilderness areas before they even became national parks. We used to be able to enter American Fork canyon for free. I don't mind having a national parks pass and support the fees, but do not take away what we love most about these canyons-Beautiful, uncrowded climbing and canyoneering. Let us enjoy nature!
