Comments: Dear USFS,

I'm writing to ask that you protect the right to maintain established fixed anchors and responsibly bolt new fixed anchors on climbing routes on USFS land for the following reasons as outlined by the Access Fund, of which I'm a member.

"Fixed anchors are an essential piece of climbers' safety system and are not prohibited 'installations' under the Wilderness Act. Following existing climbing policies that allow judicious use of fixed anchors for more than a half century will do more to protect Wilderness character while providing for primitive and unconfined Wilderness climbing.

It is unreasonable for federal agencies to create new guidance policies prohibiting Wilderness climbing anchors across the country when they have allowed, managed, and authorized fixed anchors for decades.

Prohibiting fixed anchors will create safety issues by imposing unnecessary obstacles to the regular maintenance of fixed anchors, a responsibility undertaken by the climbing community. Critical safety decisions often must be made in the moment and any authorization process should not impede those decisions. Fixed anchor maintenance needs to be managed in a way that incentivizes safe anchor replacement and does not risk the removal of climbing routes.

Prohibiting fixed anchors obstructs appropriate exploration of Wilderness areas. Land managers need to allow climbers to explore Wilderness in a way that permits in-the-moment decisions that are necessary when navigating complex vertical terrain.

Prohibiting fixed anchors will threaten America's rich climbing legacy and could erase some of the world's greatest climbing achievements. Climbing management policy needs to protect existing routes from removal.

Restricting the establishment of new routes to 'existing climbing opportunities' on non-Wilderness lands is unenforceable and will create confusion amongst land managers and climbers. Non-Wilderness climbing management policy should maintain opportunities for new anchors unless and until analyses determine climbing should be restricted to protect cultural and natural resources."

These issues will be best addressed in Protecting America's Rock Climbing (PARC) Act, which protects sustainable Wilderness climbing access. The bill was recently included in the bipartisan Expanding Public Lands Outdoor Recreation Experiences (EXPLORE) Act, which is moving quickly through the House of Representatives.

Sincerely,

Timothy Bradford
