Comments: I urge you to do all you can to protect the environmental integrity of the Bob Marshall Wilderness Complex. If anything, permits for outfitters and guides should become far more stringent and harder to come by rather than easier. More transparency is needed as well.

The word "wilderness" is key, and we cannot, once again, let one of our critical ecosystems suffer at the hands of those who seek profit over sustaining the wellbeing of our land and all the living entities that reside within those lands. This is not something we can fix once we "break it." It will be too late; we must start to protect our planet NOW to the best of our ability in a fierce and dedicated effort or we will be facing our own demise, sooner rather than later.
