Comments: Fixed anchors are a critical part of climber safety and the key to enabling outdoor rock climbing for beginners and professional climbers alike. As a recreational weekend rock climber, climbing outdoors with the help of fixed anchors is what opened my eyes to the beauty of the wilderness and helped me truly appreciate nature and the great outdoors. This equipment existing is part of the reason I care so much about conservation and why I switched my career to focus on combating climate change, to save these natural environments that bring me so much joy. We could pair fixed anchors with more outdoor education on protecting the wilderness and treating it with more care and respect (such as leave no trace) to make sure that access is preserved while respecting the wilderness.
