Comments: Regardless of whatever else happens regarding restrictions and limitations on rock climbing development anywhere in the world, it will always be critical to maintain the safety infrastructure that exists to protect the people that practice this sport. If we cut off the possibility for anyone to fix or replace worn protective equipment, we are directly compromising people's safety, and that should not be tolerated. I urge you to consider an avenue that would protect our wild spaces from undue trammeling and harm, while also providing for the maintenance and upkeep of the equipment that protects people from harm.
