Comments: Rock Climbing is the number one reason that I visit the National Forests and Wilderness areas. Bolted rock climbing routes are the safest and most enjoyable ways for me experience what these wonderful places have to offer. Banning bolting would convince me to stop climbing, I would stop traveling to areas throughout the USA to climb and it would have a direct negative economic impact on the cities, towns, recreational areas and campgrounds that visit both in route to the destination and at the destination. I would no longer purchase an interagency annual pass and I would purposely and verbally boycott the Forest Service so they would lose revenue.
