Comments: It is important to leave responsibly left anchors and rigging in a cave. It mitigates the damage done to the cave because it makes them safer. If someone is injured in a cave with them then the investment pays off, it becomes much easier to rescue them. And large scale rescue missions that would be required otherwise will be generally more harmful to the cave. The only people interacting with the equipment will be cavers as well, so noone else's experience of the outdoors will be impacted by it.
