Comments: Please don't ruin climbing for us. We need bolts and permanent anchors to help to sport to stay safe and possible in certain situations. These bolts are hardly noticeable to anyone except climbers. Unless you look for them and even when you look for them they are hard to see. They save lives by being present and prevent other means of repelling like colorfull pieces of fabric from being left for rapells.

Climbing has been a life saver and beautiful connection to the earth that has made be a better human and care more about the earth that I am connected to. We should not remove the ability to put bolts in in the wilderness. It should be allowed. It helps us experience the wilderness in an amazing way that Is an incredible experience.

Please make more bolting allowed. Not less. Let us climb. Let us put up new routes. Let us fix and replace old bolts. The children of the world will thank you for allowing them to climb recreate and explore with bolts that keep them safe and allow us to unlock incredible puzzles that tantalize the mind body and soul in ways that nothing else can.

Save climbing and allow it to continue to grow and uplift the world. I know so many people who are so happy because of getting to climb in amazing places around the world. Let us climb. Let us bolt. Let us rebolt, please and thank you.
