Comments: I would like to start by saying I love the outdoors. I spend as much time as possible exploring the wilderness. Because of this I want to see the wilderness areas taken care of as much as anybody. However, I don't think it is reasonable to create new guidance policies prohibiting Wilderness climbing anchors. Fixed anchors are an essential piece of a climbers safety system. We as a society should be encouraging people to explore and enjoy the wilderness not making it harder and more dangerous. One of my goals in life is to climb El Capitan. Please do not take that dream away from me.
