Comments: Please do not change the regulations on fixed equipment!

As fixed anchors and equipment save lives and make the sport of climbing far safer., the impact of banning fixed equipment could literally be extra, preventable deaths. Banning them would be equivalent to banning seat-belts or helmet when biking. One could ban seat-belts, then argue that the correct response would be to take public transit everywhere since driving, like climbing, is an optional activity, but that is very unfair to those who have enjoyed the activity or incorporated it into their lives.
