Comments: There are so many positives of leaving these areas along for people to admire let alone the wildlife that is sustained. As a woodworker and teacher of Woodworking, I can't help think about my classes in renewable resources but at the same time respecting the wonders Mother Nature has provided for us. Once they are gone, that is it. You just can't plant seeds and growth these beautiful areas back in one's lifetime. When will profits ever take a backseat to the Wonders of Nature. What climate change will also be unreversed.
