Comments: I am against NPS and USFS proposals to eliminate bolts and anchors in climbing areas of National parks. These come at the same time that legislation to protect the legal and conditional use, placement, and maintenance of bolts and other fixed anchors is making its way through Congress. The bipartisan Protecting America's Rock Climbing Act and America's Outdoor Recreation Act moved through their respective committees with unanimous support in 2023. Please don't adopt rules that will result in costly equipment removal just to then write new rules that allow these climbing safety devices to be reinstalled. It limits safe climbing options and increases the cost of climbing when Americans can least afford it.
