Comments: As I have stated before, our planet, country, state & city all need millions of generational trees of diversity to assist in balancing our climate challenges. The precious old growth (Grandparent) trees are particularly important to our planets health & well being as they filter the toxic air and many other benefits. These ancient gems are truly stunning if you are lucky enough to see one, since less than 5% remain. In other words, they are endangered and we must protect them as well as allow more trees to become 'old growth'.

Thank you.
