Comments: Hey government, Please rethink this harebrained proposal. Climbers as a group are some of the most environmentally conscious, leave no trace practicing, conservation minded advocates of wilderness spaces. This would be a clear assault on their livelihood, and, to be frank, most would just ignore it. So if you want to pass stupid laws that have no teeth because they will be ignored, go for it. I doubt you have the budget to enforce this, which begs the question: WHY So maybe time to rethink this one. Maybe work with some climbers and find a compromise.
