Comments: Please do not move forward with these new policies. They will simultaneously make climbing more dangerous and limit our ability to enjoy this country's beautiful natural assets. I have climbed, hiked, and camped in many areas throughout the U.S. and have seen NO evidence that modern sport climbing anchors are a threat to the conservation or preservation of rocks, mountains, plants, animals, ecological systems, or their individual and natural beauty. I love our country's natural resources and want nothing to diminish them for future generations. Accordingly, I and many other climbers routinely contribute to conservation-related initiatives. The proposed policy will neither conserve nor preserve anything. Please scrap it.
