Comments: Limiting the establishment of new routes to "existing climbing opportunities" is not fair public access to the outdoors and would become a quickly disregarded restriction. Climbers will always find a way to climb and it is a newly exploding sport with skyrocketing popularity. There will be no way to enforce these limits, and nor should they be enforced. Climbing is reason outdoor recreation. I understand climbers can't run rampant with establishing new routes. But I request that a committee of climbers be established to help regulate route establishment.
