Comments: To whom it concerns:

I think you should not ban fixed anchors, or temporary anchors in national parks. I believe to do so would be short-sighted and detrimental to all citizens and to climbers in particular. You are in ultimate effect, deciding what is and is not a good sport. Banning climbing is saying that citizens can only choose particular sports, even though other sports can be even more damaging to the parks.

This is also an arbitrary and capricious decision. Climbing in the park areas predates the existence of the park system. You'll be erasing not just history, but active participation in the history.

You should not ban climbing in parks, which is what you're really doing with this ban.
