Comments: The Bob Marshall Wilderness has been a treasure inthe United States, It is essential that all outfitters and all hikers for that matter treat this treasured wilderness with respect and care in order to preserve it for current and future generations of users - to keep it as the beautiful wilderness it has been known as over the years.  It is critical that  the Forest Service assure that all outfitters and their clients using this  wilderness adhere to rigorous practices of care for this important environmental resource and landscape. Past practices of such outfitters as well as current adherence to all regulations is essential,
