Comments: I believe that there can be a way where instead of prohibiting fixed anchors I believe there could be more regulations where routes can be bolted or how to be bolted by working directly with the climbing community and organizations. The sport itself rely on the rock itself, so what we do is not intended to ruin the wilderness and the rock formation. Prohibiting fixed anchor will affect the safety of the climbers, and this is a sport that has been around for many decades. There can be more regulation put in place when bolting new routes to make sure the preservation of the integrity of the land and culture, but it should not be a hard ban.
