Comments: To quote some insights from a wonderful forester Peter Wohlleben and in protection and support of plant sentience, and who I would also argue a very wise messenger.

"If a tree falls in the forest, there are other trees listening."

"Researchers looked at about 700,000 trees on every continent around the world. The surprising result: the older the tree, the more quickly it grows."

"Trees create a dynamic and beautiful ecosystem." And "When it comes to climate change, they are important allies." And that, "Appropriate tree management can be used with no qualms of conscience." That, "Every tree, therefore, is valuable to the community and worth keeping around for as long as possible. And that is why sick individuals are nourished and supported until they recover."

Allowing for these natural resources allows us to recover.
