Comments: Please protect the remaining old-growth forests in the United States. Conserving these forests will benefit the citizens of this country for years to come. Besides storing large amounts of carbon, the trees in these forests are vital to the emotional health of Americans. To walk in these woods is to take a deep breath and exhale stress and anxiety. It is a shame that we have only 17% of old-growth forests left. Let's not act with short-sightedness and harvest these very important trees. Act for the future, for our kids, our grandchildren and our country's future and protect this resource.

Thank-you,
