

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 2/1/2024 10:31:43 PM

First name: Karen

Last name: Maki

Organization:

Title:

Comments: The most important function of US National Forests now is sequestering and storing carbon to enable us to reduce the impacts of climate change. All old growth and mature trees in national forests should be protected. They are more valuable to us sequestering carbon than a building material.