Comments: I am incredibly excited to hear about protection for old growth forests in the US. I worked in South Korea for a few years and to see the way they protect, cherish, and enjoy the forests/ old growth trees was amazing to see. These trees provide protection and beauty for us - they're a resource that we cannot easily replace. Climate change requires that we make big, necessary changes for future generations and I'm glad to see a policy that prioritizes quality of life and protection of land over profit and corporations.
