Comments: Dear US Forest service,

There is only a tiny portion of the once vast old growth forest left in the country. This is because of the vicious colonization of this land, lead in large part by our government. Much of that logic of endless consumption and domination of the land persists today.

Biodiversity is the lowest it's been in human existence, at a crisis level. The climate crisis too. I'm writing this and it just feels like such a no brainer to follow through with cataloging and protecting all of the precious few stands of old growth forest left.

I hope you do.

Sincerely,

Clayton Dewey
