Dear Forest Service:

Please start managing forest service land for better forest health by selective logging, thinning and burning. More times than I can count, when I drive through patches of state or private forest land it usually is in much better health/condition and is more diverse in wildlife, plants and trees. When I drive through forest service land it's almost always extremely choked with shrubs, fallen trees, unhealthy, diseased dwarfed trees so thick the sun never gets through. The wildlife is not as abundant due to the food source being lean or nonexistent in a dark rats nest of a forest. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Carla Kane
