Good morning,

We have received feedback that scheduling discussions regarding AMAs and adaptive management for after the Eugene meeting would be better timing so folks are not overcapacity with subcommittee meetings, drafting language, and other prep for the January meeting.

I have created a new scheduling poll

Thank you to those who filled out the previous poll; apologies for the double work!

A note on the scheduling poll: Sign in with your first and last name, a password is optional. Highlight the times you are available by clicking and dragging the timeslots. Your input will autosave, there are no additional steps needed after you click and drag your availability.

Thank you,

Passing along some context from Meg:

In the original NWFP amendment, "ten Adaptive Management Areas were identified, each with an objective to develop and test new management approaches to integrate and achieve ecological and economic health, and other social objectives" (S&G A-4). These AMAs were an exciting opportunity to experiment and explore ideas and management options, but were never fully realized for a variety of reasons. Now with climate change as an additional stressor on ecosystems, the opportunity to leverage AMAs to test climate change adaptation options and explore a broad portfolio of stewardship ideas seems even more critical. These could also be areas to explore the trigger concepts that SJ showcased for true adaptive management? And perhaps even expand the footprint and purview of AMAs?

If you're interested in this discussion, come join us!
