Comments: This is an absolutely absurd proposal considering what's going on with climbing and congress currently. Stop building more stuff on national park land, and do something to help climbing continue to be a positive influence on society and nature. To take away classic "free climbs" to cater to the million and billionaires is an absolute injustice to the majority of the population who have rights to national land. I am disgusted that I have to spend my time fighting for our rights while people with more time off and more money try to take them away. Do something for the people if we pay your salary.
