Comments: We have separately uploaded three letters of comment, with attachments, as PDFs. Just as a final note and to be sure it is not overlooked, we have concerns about each of the some 62 permits being considered for reauthorization, both individually and cumulatively. No human use is entirely benign nor is any permitted use and the goal it would seem is to be certain that those impacts are truly minimized to a degree both individually and cumulatively that they do not cause unwarranted harm to the environment. The Forest Service simply has not provided enough information for us to be able to detail our concerns about each permit, its impacts and the performance of each permittee.
