Comments: Private cabins do not belong in designated Wilderness that belongs to the public. The U.S. Forest Service must leave its current policy unchanged and phase out ANILCA cabins, as was the original intent. These cabins were never meant to persist in Wilderness, and to change this policy would undermine ANILCA and the Wilderness Act. Private cabins on public Wilderness lands are harmful to the environment. They only benefit a small group of people at the expense of everyone else. I strongly oppose any change to the current policy.
